FASHION AND CREATIVE EXPRESSION

The code for the course is (HNC30) and while a classified as a Grade 11 course, there is no prerequisite. However, students must have the maturity to work in unique circumstances, be self-motivated and responsible.

Course Description

This course explores what clothing communicates about the wearer and how it becomes a creative and entrepreneurial outlet through the design and production processes. Students will learn, through practical experiences, about the nature of fashion design; the characteristics of fibres and fabrics; the construction, production, and marketing of clothing; and how to plan and care for a wardrobe that is appropriate for an individual's appearance, activities, employment, and lifestyle. Students will develop research skills as they explore the evolution of fashion and its relationship to society, culture, and individual psychology.

Working with their teacher, students will produce a final project of their choosing to demonstrate the skills and knowledge acquired during the course.
